Release Notes:

Who of you still knows it? The legendary track "Adventures of Dama" by the Cybordelics? For the fans of that classics and inquisitive people, who have not been part of the scene back in 1998, there is now good news. On Harthouse Mannheim a new edition of the track will be released now. This project was founded back then with the three producers Daniel Varga, Milan Zemanec and Mike S. The latter is distinguished in this new version again and also responsible for the fresh sound.

Mike S. conjures a melodically beautiful new version of the classic. Sound engineer Robert Babicz, however, makes the oldschool Techno roots revive and plays with plenty of beats and percussions, before initiating the duly melody theme. Probably the hardest version of "Adventures of Dama" comes from none other than Techno master Alex Bau and bangs on almost eleven minutes right to the front. Those who prefer hip moving Tech-House, should check out the remix of Danito, because this has everything the genre promises, without any pigeonhole thinking.

A true classic of Techno history shines in a new guise. Here, the style Techno shows all its magnificent colors and diversity. 15 year old sounds remixed and reinterpreted. Let's hope that there will be another chapter of Cybordelics for the 30th anniversary.
